

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE
SAINT LOUIS (10), MO.

Handwritten signature/initials

DEPARTMENT OF BACTERIOLOGY AND IMMUNOLOGY
EUCLID AVENUE AND KINGSHIGHWAY

September 26, 1950

Dr. J. Lederberg
Department of Genetics
University of Wisconsin
Madison, Wisconsin

Dear Dr. Lederberg:

Thanks for your very prompt and considerate replies to my inquiry regarding S. typhimurium SW-13 and S. gallinarum SY-36. So far I have done only some very brief and preliminary experiments with these strains, since my time for personal research is very limited, and my thesis work is in the field of immunology. However, the phenomenon of lysogenicity, as it exists in the famous Bacillus megatherium 899 and apparently in certain Salmonellas, has fascinated me for some time, and I hope eventually to be able to really dig into this problem.

Yours sincerely,

Louise Adler

Louise Adler